ABSTRACT

Every human take many actions in his/her day to day life. Few actions of humans knowingly or unknowingly affects their standard of living . Sometimes their actions creates unknown problems. The project “ A Perspective on Indian society ” is to address such problems by querying through different fields of different varieties of data sets which directly or indirectly affects the human daily routine and the living strategy of human. The data sets are obtained from the human activities observed in medical , educational, professional and rural and urban standard of living data. The data sets may contain several thousand tuples.

There are several hundreds of fields to query and represent the reports graphically. So, the development environment and tools must support to handle scale very large datasets and to compile the complex weighted as well as un weighted data.

“A Perspective on Indian society “ study/analyse the development index by analyzing the Diverse areas that reflect standard of living of People. we also report increased the growth index for each of the diversities. This survey data analytics is very useful in finding the keys to unlock the human problems by showcasing the patterns hidden in the surveyed data.
